$105,000 County Mine Suit

Smith Flat Man Defendant In Action Filed Friday

Purchasers Of Carpender Mine Allege
Property Represented As Virgin Had Been Previously Worked

Alleging they failed to find virgin mining ground as represented, but instead found that ground they were led to believe was virgin had been previously worked, the Placeres de Oro Company, operators of the Carpender mine at Smith Flat, on Friday filed suit against Bert Carpender for $105,565. Carpender formerly owned the mine.

The associates in the Placeres de Oro Company are Malcolm W. Moss, W. D. O'Brien and J. K. Gold.

Under an order issued out of Superior Court, Mr. Carpender is to appear Monday morning in court for taking a statement of his contention in the controversy.

The action was filed through Attorney C. W. Pearson.

The complaint charges that Mr. Carpender represented certain areas of the property as virgin mining ground and that upon the strength of these representations Mr. Moss entered into an agreement on May 14, 1936 to buy the property before June 1, 1936 for $35,000 cash; which was subsequently done.

It is alleged that the plaintiffs, in an examination of the property, called Mr. Carpender's attention to certain caved laterals in the mine and that it was explained that these were purely exploratory.

Plaintiffs charged that they began mining and carried on this work until March 10, 1937, and allege that they found that the ground represented as virgin had been previously worked.

They would not have purchased the

Name Omitted In Graduation

Kathleen Dwyer, rural school supervisor, has called our attention to the omission of the name of an eighth grade graduate from the list as recently printed in this paper. This was an unintentional oversight.

The omission was in regard to graduates from Oak Hill school, where Caroline Wallace and Ruth Corder both are graduates. In the earlier printing, the name of one of the girls was omitted. We are glad to make this correction.

Attack Charged By Film Girl

Sales Convention
"Party" Described
As Wild Orgy

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Wallace Beery, the actor, today described as "very orderly as far as I could see" the film studio convention party at which a girl extra, one of 125 brought there as entertainers, charged she was attacked.

The party was brought to the attention of the district attorney's office by Patricia Douglas, 20, who claimed she was criminally assaulted by a boisterous salesman after being brought to the party under the impression she was getting film work.

Beery was cast as a gallant "rescuer" who offered to drive home another distressed extra, Ginger Wyatt, 19. This was in an affidavit Miss Wyatt swore out in support of Miss Douglas' description of the party.

Miss Wyatt's affidavit said she was brought to the party in the same manner as Miss Douglas, after being outfitted with a cowgirl costume, and was assigned to help entertain visiting film salesmen. She said Beery appeared "out of harmony" with the affair and, seeing that she was distressed, politely offered to drive her home. She said she accepted the offer.

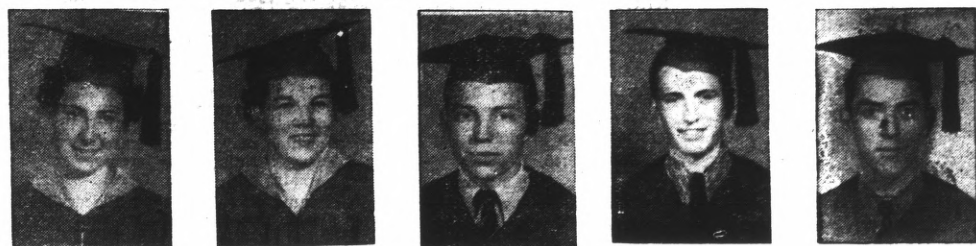

Miss Wyatt made an affidavit saying Wallace Beery had "rescued" her from the party. Beery, she said, was an invited guest but was not in harmony with the party. She described it as "the wildest, most drunken and worst party I ever saw."

The girls said they answered the studio's call thinking they were reporting to work. When they reached the ranch where the party was given and found it decorated like a miner's camp of the '49er days, with champagne and whisky on the tables, they still thought it was to be just a "mob scene" before the cameras, they said.

They soon learned, however, that they had been imported as real life entertainers, the girls said, and the boisterous sales executives began plying them with liquor and forcing amorous attentions upon them.

Deputy District Attorney Eugene D. Williams said he had ordered the studio to surrender the man accused of assaulting Miss Douglas by Monday, and if it failed to do so, he would issue an arrest warrant. He said he wanted to question the man before taking action. His name was not revealed.

7 Cremated In Bus Crash

REDDING (UP)—A speeding Greyhound bus plunged from the highway 48 miles north of here today, crashed into a road embankment and caught fire, burning to death at least six passengers and the driver.

The driver was identified tentatively as Al Wilson, a substitute, who took over the wheel of the San Francisco-Portland northbound vehicle at Redding. The passengers were not identified immediately.

Captain F. S. Curren of the Sims Civilian Conservation Corps camp, located about a mile from the site of the wreck, said he and a corps of CCC boys saw at least seven bodies in the flame-charred wreckage.

"Wilson was still sitting in the driver's seat," he said. "We could see other bodies strewn through the bus."

Curren said he was aroused about 4:30 a. m. by a man named Smith, who operates a service station about 25 yards from where the bus crashed and caught fire.

Curren said he rushed with a squad of his enrollees to the scene to find flames leaping from the wreckage.

"It was so hot we couldn't get near it," he said. "We extinguished the flames, but the heat still made it impossible to get inside the bus."

"It must have struck the bank with terrific force, because it ran part way up the side of the cut, dislodged boulders weighing half a ton, then turned over on its top."

"It's lying in the highway with all four wheels upright."

$40,000 Fire At Rio Vista

Incendiarism Seen
As Blaze Destroys
Lumber Yard

RIO VISTA (UP)—An early morning fire officials said was touched off by an incendiary, destroyed the Rio Vista branch of the Noah Adams Lumber Company today. Damage was estimated at $40,000 to $50,000.

Lew Jackson, tender of the Rio Vista bridge, discovered the fire and turned in an alarm at 12:30 a. m. Fifty men, under supervision of Fire Chief L. P. Kerner, controlled the flames, which menaced surrounding homes and the Rio Vista plant of the California Packing Corporation, one of the world's largest asparagus packing plants.

The fire still was burning late this morning but streams of water pumped from the Sacramento River had checked danger of its spreading.

SCOUT PATROLS GET RATINGS ON CAMPORAL

Results of the camporees held recently under the auspices of the Golden Empire Council, Boy Scouts of America, were announced this week by Scout Executive Hazen Shower of the council.

Approximately one thousand Scouts participated in the four camporees which were held at Sacramento, Isleton, Placerville and Jackson.

The Scouts camped under their own leadership in patrols of not more than eight Scouts including the patrol leader.

Each patrol competed against a fixed standard of proficiency rather than against other participating patrols.

Those patrols receiving either an "A" or "B" rating in the camporees are eligible to participate in the Northern California Camporal which is to be held during October.

Six patrols of El Dorado County Scouts are so distinguished. They are the Explorers, Beavers and Panthers of Troop 57, all with a "B" rating; the Beavers, of Camino troop, and the Flying Eagles and Pine Trees, of Diamond Springs, all with an "A" rating.

Venetians Hail Duke, Wally

As Newlyweds Halt
On Honeymoon

VENICE (UP)—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor, smiling and happy, arrived at the famous city of canals at 3:50 p. m. today, enroute to their secluded honeymoon retreat in Austria.

They were cheered by 1000 persons at the station.

Military and naval officers, Venetian citizens and tourists crowded around the ducal coach as the train arrived. They cheered when the Duke and Duchess left the train and went to the Quay.

Police held the crowd back while the honeymooners embarked on a motor launch furnished by the municipality and started a tour of the city, having three hours for sightseeing before starting for Arnoldstein, Austria.

The Duke and Duchess were welcomed at the station by the British consul, Allan Napier, and by Count Bellegarde on behalf of the municipality of Venice.

Both looked a bit self-conscious as they made their way to the Quay between lanes of cheering crowds.

The complaint charges that the value of the mine was represented to the plaintiffs as $80,000 when, in truth and in fact, it was actually worth $8,000.

In addition to this loss, the complaint sets forth the expenditure of $3,000 for sampling; $180 for title insurance; $385.16 for the expenses of organizing and incorporating the company to operate and develop the property; and $30,000 as expended for labor and materials in excess of wealth recovered between June 1, 1936 and March 10, 1937, all of which foots up to $105,565, the amount prayed for.

GRANGE NOTES

MARSHALL GRANGE
Marshall Grange met in regular session Friday, May 28th. Pomona Master Carl Visman and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Blair of Hangtown Grange were present and Master Visman spoke of three different bills coming up in Washington soon that are harmful to agriculture and told how important it is that every Granger and farmer should be advised of these dangers and work together for agriculture and its future welfare. Every Granger and farmer should get behind Master Visman for he is doing a great deal of work and is a true friend of the farmer. Mr. Blair spoke of the activities of his Grange and of their hopes for the future. After the meeting was adjourned members and friends, about seventy-five strong, danced to old-time music by Rudolph Schlein, Lillie Nothlic, Ira Cushman, Jay Fogal, Frenchy Mills, and Milton Smith. Dancing was in charge of Fred Veerkamp. The prize waltz was won by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Blair of Placerville. Supper was served by Grange ladies at 11 o'clock and dancing stopped at midnight after all had a very good time. Next meeting of Marshall Grange will be June 11th. Grangers always welcome.

Low Rail Fares Offer Puzzle

cent. So, while more passengers may be carried, the additional cost of operating an extra train cuts into the revenue received on this particular trip of the train.

Western railroads, which depend on tourist traffic for most of their business, have a different problem. Traffic is not so heavy, except between certain competitive points, such as Chicago and Omaha, Chicago and the Twin Cities, Omaha and Kansas City. Therefore, the Western lines strive to obtain all possible passenger traffic, since they usually have the facilities for handling any amount without the necessity of adding to existing trains. Of course, the traffic to California is highly competitive, with the Rock Island-Southern Pacific, the Santa Fe, and the Northern, Union Pacific constantly trying to improve their service to add to their business.

Eastern passenger men estimate that the major portion of their new business has been drawn from privately-operated automobiles, especially on short-haul trips, such as between Detroit and Cleveland, Buffalo and Rochester, Chicago and Cincinnati. For with the lowered coach fare, it is cheaper to use the train than to drive an automobile.

The Western lines have taken quite a bit of traffic from the bus lines, with some from privately-operated automobiles, it is said. And whereas the major portion of Eastern traffic increase has been on short-haul and local traffic, the Western lines largest pickup has been in long-haul and through traffic.

One reason why Eastern representatives are not heartily in favor of the lowered fares is apparent from this example. Assuming a train going from Chicago to New York under the old fare-system, carried 50 passengers in Pullman cars, and 50 passengers in coaches, the revenue on this particular trip would have amounted to $3,420. Under the new fares, on the same journey, with the same number of passengers, 50 in Pullman cars and 50 in coaches, the revenue now would amount to $2,275.50. Since the passenger men estimate 80 per cent of these patrons would have ridden the train regardless of the cost, they can see no financial benefit in the lowered fares.

While Eastern executives still are somewhat skeptical of the value of lowered fares, and Western passenger men are highly enthusiastic over the lowered rates, both are in agreement that the traveling public is gradually, but certainly, starting a "return to the rails" movement.

And all the passenger executives are unanimous in agreeing that this summer should give the railroads the best business in the passenger line they have experienced in the past eight years, unless something unforeseen upsets business conditions and holds down travel budgets of individuals and business concerns which use the rails to a great extent.

and little daughter, from near Sacramento, were brief visitors at the McDonald home Sunday. Accompanying them were Mr. Vanderbeck's nephews from Nebraska. The party continued on to Grizzly Flat. Frank McDonald accompanied them.

AIR CONVOY FOR BOATS IN CASE OF WAR

LONDON (UP)—Plans for aerial convey of all ships coming into British ports in war-time are being drawn up by the Admiralty Committee working with the Food Defense Department.

The First Lord of the Admiralty hinted at this in a speech at the launching of the aircraft-carrier Royal in Birkenhead. He said the development of carriers would greatly assist the problem of food supplies by giving convoys the protection of aircraft in large numbers. By this means the surrounding air and sea could be searched for raiders.

That was the first indication of the purpose for which the Admiralty building five of these vessels.

It is now the fixed policy of the committee of Imperial Defense, the convoys would be instituted at once on the outbreak of war. R. A. F. experts have admitted that aircraft alone cannot do the work of escorting merchant ships, even in narrow waters. It is regarded as certain that it will be carried out by the Navy and the Fleet Air Arm in co-operation.

Aircraft-carriers up to the present have worked solely with the battle fleets, and their tactical training has been concerned with fleet actions.

The chief difficulty about aerial convoys is the difference in speed between aircraft and merchant ships. Six machines escorting a convoy would fly about 6,000 miles round and round the merchantmen while these were making an advance of only about 6 miles. Moreover, aircraft cannot escort ships steaming with all lights out on a dark night, because they cannot keep in touch with them.

She returned recently from her third year at the University at Berkeley.
